Study Result

REASON FOR EXAM: Cough

COMPARISON: 11/2/2020, 1/31/2020, 11/1/2019, 9/9/2019 and PET/CT dated 2/19/2020

PA and lateral views of the chest were obtained. Bones and soft tissues are stable. The left cardiac margin and left subclavian transvenous cardiac pacer wire position is unchanged. The left lung is aerated and clear. The mediastinum is shifted to the right.

Compared to previous studies, aeration in the remaining portion of the right lung continues to slowly diminish. There is heterogeneous interstitial opacity throughout the periphery of the remaining right lung. Irregular soft tissue density at the right hilum is again noted, slightly more prominent on previous studies.

IMPRESSION: Slowly increasing volume loss and heterogeneous opacification in the right lung suggesting disease progression.
